HANGED BY A DREAM.

BY L. D.

I was staying for a short time in Medina county, Ohio, when the following occurred: A boy, living in S— Centre with his parents, was "bound out" for a year to a Mr. Evans, at Medina, the county seat. His work was to chop and saw wood and run errands. As the boy was perfectly honest and not afraid of work, he soon gained the good-will of his employer, who, when the year was out, made him a present, in addition to his wages, of a fine copy of "Robinson Crusoe." The boy had been kindly treated during his term, and this, with the addition of the present, had gained his employer's esteem. The boy wished to stay another year, but his parents had need of him at home, and so he returned.

About three months after he visited his old employer. He remained a day or two, and during that time "struck up" an acquaintance with a man who had succeeded him in the old merchant's service. Now, as all boys are social and wish for company, it is not surprising that he went with the hired man a good deal. At night he was allowed to sleep with him, yet the man always viewed the boy with dislike. Mr. Evans extended him a cordial invitation to come again, and once more the boy returned home. Not a week had passed when one morning the boy, coming down from his room pale and embarrassed, asked for a horse to proceed at once to Medina. Such a request was not common, and the parents by close questioning succeeded in eliciting the following story: "When I went to bed last night, I soon got to sleep. I don't believe I slept over an hour when suddenly I awoke. I lay there thinking and thinking, and then turned over to go to sleep. All at once I felt as if a sword had been stuck through me, and immediately I jumped or rather floated from the bed. It seemed rather curious, so I cast a glance toward the bed and saw that somebody was there to all appearances sleeping soundly.

The mother then interrupted, saying, "I guess you ate too much for supper and had the nightmare."

The boy made no reply except to proceed with his story. "I tried to feel the body in the bed, but by some invisible agency I was whirled out of the window, and with terrific speed was carried toward Medina. How it was done I know not; yet I am as sure I was absent from this last night in spirit or body, as I am that I am now living. Passing over the fields, I noted every house and farm until Medina was in sight. Faster than the wind I went, until I was looking into the chamber window of Mr. Evans. He was sleeping with his wife, calmly and peacefully. I looked toward the door. It creaked on its hinges, opened, and three men entered softly. One of them was the hired man. The others I know not, yet I could recognize them among a thousand. One was a half-breed, and the other apparently a Scotchman.

"The hired man opened a drawer in the stand, and took from it the old man's own razor. He went to the bed, and with it cut the old man's throat from ear to ear as calmly as if he was butchering a cow. The hot blood spouted forth; the old man gave out one groan, and he was dead. The blood fell upon the face of his wife. It awoke her. There, in the moonlight she saw her husband's murderer—his hands dripping with blood. Then she turned toward the murderer. She seemed endowed with the strength of a giant. Snatching the razor from the bed where it had fallen, she sprung like a tigress upon the murderer. He shook her off. Then, with one superhuman effort, she drove the razor deep into the breast of the one who stood nearest. It was the half-breed. The other two seemed transfixed with horror; but the Scotchman, recovering himself, seized a hatchet which he had brought, and literally hacked Mrs. Evans into pieces. Their devilish work being done, they rifled the pockets of Mr. Evans, and raising the mattress took from under it a package of bills round which was wrapped a small piece of writing paper. I saw no more. I was conducted back to S— Centre, and I awoke from a sound sleep. It was morning."

When the boy began his story the parents ridiculed him, but his earnestness and the knowledge of his integrity had convinced them that there was "something in it."

So, according to his repeated requests, he was allowed to go to Medina. He arrived at noon and found that Mrs. and Mr. Evans had been murdered; that one of the murderers had been killed by Mrs. Evans, and that the police were on the track of the hired man who had not been seen since the murder.

The boy remounted and started home, and when the news came that the murderer had been captured he went up to Medina and satisfied himself that they were really the murderers.

The trial came off, Silas Ketchum, the hired man, pleaded not guilty, and so also did his cousin. The prosecuting attorney had heard the boy's story and began an address in which he described everything as the boy had related. When he came to the part where the Scotchman killed Mrs. Evans, the prisoner started up and cried out:

"Oh, God! Silas we're lost; some one has seen us. (To the judge): I will confess. What Mr. — says is Gospel truth; we did kill them. May God have mercy upon us."

The two were sentenced to death, and hanged soon after, for justice was sure and speedy at that time in Ohio.

FANCY GOODS AND NOTIONS.

NEW FALL GOODS
JUST OPENING AT
GREEN'S NOTION HOUSE,
Alexandria, Virginia.

Advance orders for large quantities of Foreign and Domestic

NOTIONS
are now being received, and which have been purchased in package quantities for WHOLESALE TRADE.

GREEN'S NOTION HOUSE
RETAIL DEPARTMENT
This Department affords great advantages to retail purchasers.

A moderate profit upon package prices has been, and is shall continue to be, my motive power.

Placing large orders insures great advantages to buyers. These facts are known to every merchant.

My constantly increasing trade in every Department of my business will warrant a closer profit than goods have ever been sold at before, and with a stock of goods in this line of

Ladies' & Gents' Furn'g Goods,
Hosiery, Gloves, Underwear, Zephyr Worsteds, Embroidery Materials, Belts, Laces, Scarfs, Dress Trimmings, Buttons, Jewelry, Real Hair Goods, &c., &c., which will be larger than the combined stocks of the city. I can, without doubt say to all that it will be to their interests at least to look through this and make a note of the quantity, quality and price.

MAMMOTH STOCK,

Goods retailed as heretofore at a fraction only above wholesale figures. This can be readily done, as the extra discounts of manufacturers and importers are in many instances quite large.

My stock is now full and complete in all departments, and the wants of every one can be supplied.

Fortunately for myself and customers, chronic croakers have no influence in these quarters, and I shall continue to oppose any combination to maintain extortionary prices.

Thanking my customers and friends both in and out of the city for their liberal patronage, confidence and influence during the past few years, I hereby further assure them that in the future as in the past I shall exert myself to maintain a stock of goods that will do credit to Alexandria and continue to attract trade from all the surrounding country.

During the approaching season other Departments will be added to stock, each of which will be complete in every particular.

Goods wholesaled at prices as low as any jobbing house in New York.
